Any ordinary concert could begin promptly at $3.30 with everybody scated, proc ed without annoying interruptions and close long before the theaters are out or any means of homeward transit sout off. Would not every interest be thus better served?

For the thousands of people that do not leave store or office until 6 o'clock or later and have to spend half an hour each way to and from their homes, it often requires considerable hurry and worry in order to got back to a concert by $0'clock. After the day's duties, whatever they be, one wants recreation that does not seem so much like work.

With the steady movement of population out to the suburbs this demand for readjustment of the hours for public entertainments ment of the hours for public entertainments grows continually more pressing. It is a ques-tion of the hour that merits careful considera-tion on the part of the Mozart Club managers and other concert givers—a question important enough to justify its rather lengthy intrusion into what started out to be a concert review.

With the emission of the songs assigned to Mrs. Wolfe, who was indisposed, the following was the programme of the Ballad Concert:

Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms Moor Mr. J. Boyd Duff.

Mrs. Wm. B. Wolfe.

O, Promise Me. Mr. W. T. English. De Koven THE FAIRIES! REALM. (Choral Ballad.) BY PR. NALM.

English Translation by Rev. George Crosswell Cressey.
Composed for Mixed Chorus With Orchestral or Planeforte Accompaniment by CHARLES DAVIS CARTER, of Pittsburg, Pa.

The printed programmes would have been in better taste had the last number been less theatrically displayed. It was, moreover, a great oversight not to provide the usual programmes with words. In simple songs and ballads the text has relatively greater importance than in some more claborate compositions. Distinct enunciation is one of the last things learned by most dispers. can neither read nor hear the words, there's precious little left of a ballad. precious little left of a ballad.
In spite of such drawbacks, however, the evening was one of unfeigned, unstrained pleasure—a restful evening, of the milder kind of joy for which one does not have to climb the of joy for which one does not have beights.

The chorus sang what they had to do particularly well. It was mostly simple, straightforward work comparatively free from technical difficulty. Some passages of Faning's very effective "Daybreak." however, were quite trying. There was great spirit and precision in the choral work throughout. In the matter of dynamic shading, the club was evidently resolved to atone for the club was evidently resolved to atone for all past deficiencies; effects of this nature all past deficiencies; effects of this nature formed the notable points of the choral work upon the evening in question. Conductor Mc-Collum and all the singers are to be congratu-lated upon that transformation. Mr. Carter's choral ballad proved to be an interesting work, clearly and carefully written; indeed, it would have been better if the T-square and compass had not been so carefully applied to it, if it had been outlined with freer and more fanci-ful strokes. ful strokes.

Among the soloists those of the fair sex are entitled to precedence both by courtesy and of right. Miss Jennie Evans accomplished her first appearance in these concerts with decided success. As shown in Gounod's pretty song, her veice was rich, sweet and sympathetic, if not particularly powerful; she sang with excellent taste, evidently having her exceptional resources well under control. Mrs. Henkler has rarely been heard to greater advantage than in the pretty, pastoral measures from Macfarren's "May Day." The same may well be said of Mrs. Thomas, who nicely modulated her nowerful first appearance in these concerts with decided

Thomas, who nicely modulated her powerful soprano to suit the soitly flowing serenade by M. E. Yearman.

This song by one well remembered in Pittsburg deserves a paragraph to itself. While the theme is reminiscent of to itself. While the theme is reminiscent of things heard before, it is very sweet and appropriate. In its working out Mr. Yeatman betrays the hand of the experienced artist who knows the value of a single line. His effects are delicate and his colors pure; both brains and heart are mixed in, and fancy is not forgot. The song is scored for strings, flute, oboe and clarinet. It is certainly a charming bit of writine.

Mr. Duff sang his good old ballad with un-ffected simplicity, but with hardly enough movement and strength. It would have been well to have had more of these genuine old weil to have had more of these genuine old ballads upon such a programme. Still the good new tunes were also pleasant to hear. Wallace's sterling song, with its cleverly institute accompaniment, was a good selection for Mr. Brockett to make, and there were many good points in his singing of it; sustained tone is what he chiefly lacks. Mr. Bullock's sweet-toned barytone and Mr. Amberson's resonant bass were heard to good effect in their respective selections. Mr. W. T. English, by his clear enunciation and intensity of feeling, scored one of the chief hits of the evening. Creditable work was done by the piano accompanists, Mossrs. John by the piano accompanists, Messrs, John Prichard, Rinehart Mayer and James H. Drake, as well as by Mr. John Gernert and the other orchestral players.

So much for the quiet simplicity of the ballad concert. Now for the pomp and glories of the Mozart Club's concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in May.

Mr. Frank M. Hunter comes back from his three years study under Vanucini at Florence, with an extra season under Randegger and Fox at London, well prepared to enter the operatic lists and contest for the honor of his native city. Mr. Hunter's enore robusto has earned him high praise those whose opinions carry weight. He sang for one season in an opera company in Italy with good success. Of the dozen or so operas in his repertoire, Mr. Hunter wisely prefers "Lohengrin." He is considering two favorable offers of immediate engagement, but may rest and recuperate from the London grip until next fall. Pittsburgers would like an opportunity to prove his mettle before long.

HE MAY FIND HIS SISTER.

Mr. King Has Many Callers, Anxious to Aid His Search for His Friends-One All the Way From California-James Tucker Among the Callers.

Samuel King, the old gentleman who came from the far West on the search for his sister, is gradually getting a clue by which he expects to be successful in finding her. Yesterday a note was received at THE DISPATCH office containing the following information concerning Mr. King's friends: James Tucker was a shoemaker occupy-ing a little one-storied frame shop on the corner of Adams street and Penn avenue, where the Ralston schoolhouse now stands. He and his sisters, one of whom was a Shannon, and a nephew, James Tucker reserved to itself the right to modify any or all the questions to be put to the witnesses. On the rear of the lot, fronting on Spring alley. James T. Shannon was a student in the Western University in 1834 and was afterward a bookkeeper in Chambers' saw mill above Mechanics street. He married a daughter of William Beck, a building contractor, who built, owned, lived and died in what is now the Metropolitan Hotel, corner of Seventh avenue and Grant street. Shan-non is dead, but his wife or some of her brothers may yet be living and be able to give some information regarding King's

Part of the above has already been proven correct. James Tucker, a son of the shoe-maker referred to, called at 1109 Carson street, Southside, where Mr. King is stopping, and had a long conversation with him. A daughter of Mr. Chambers, the owner of the sawmili referred to, also called. She is a Mrs. Pearson. She has been in California for 35 years and was ealled East by the sickness and death of a friend. Mrs. Pearson knew the family that raised Mr. King's sister, but owing to her own ab-sence from the city had lost track of them. Mr. Tucker and Mrs. Pearson both thought, however, that they could find the sister, who is thought to be the only member of the family now living.

Mr. King still remains in the house all the time. He has only been on the street twice since last Wednesday. He is airaid to go out much for fear of getting lost. He is very much encouraged over the prospects of finding the sister, from whom he has been separated for more than half a century, and of whom he speaks very feelingly when her name is mentioned. Several others called on him yesterday who were willing to do anything possible to help the old man to find his friends.

THOUSANDS WILL ATTEND.

Preparations for the Mechanics' Excursion to the Chicago Council. A meeting of members of the Jr. O. U. A. M, was held in Moorhead Hall last night to make arrangements for an excursion to Chicago to attend the meeting of the National Council, to be held in June next. A large number were present, and it was decided to effect a permanent organization, which was done by electing H. R. Peck Chairman and J. K. Emge Secretary. They will leave for Chicago Sunday afternoon, June 15. From 1,500 to 3,000 will go from Pennsylvania, the majority of whom will be from Pittsburg. Allegheny Council No.
112 will go as a body with the G. A. R.
band. McKeesport Council No. 109 will also go as a body with the Electric band. The commanderies of the O. U. A. M. will go as a regiment, taking the regimental band, and members will go from the other councils. A committee consisting of D. G. Evans, Stephen Collins, John M. Ander-son, H. F. Case and H. R. Peck was appointed to see about the transportation. They adjourned to meet at the same place

PAPERS FOR YOUNG MEN.

infifeers Discussed at the Y. M. C. A. Convention at Uniontown.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. UNIONTOWN, March 22.—The District Con-rention of the Y. M. C. A., of the Pittsburg district, held their session this morning in the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church. Seventy-five delegates are now enrolled, and 25 more are expected before the close of the convention. A paper was read by W. J. Campbell, of West Newton, on the subject, "What Can be Done in Our Association During the Week of West Newton, on the subject, "what Can be Done in Our Association During the Week Evenings That Will be Helpful to Young Men?" It dwelt upon the necessity of making the rooms attractive socially by giving a warm welcome to all who come in, and having proper amusements for their entertainment. He discussed the gymnasium feature thoroughly, and commented on the fact that a man whose blood runs sluggishly cannot make a good aggressive Christian. A paper was read by Jeseph F. Griggs, Jr., of Pittsburg, on the subject of "How Can Our Bible Classes be Made the Most Interesting and Helpful."

This afternoon, when the session opened, there were fully 100 delegates present, among them Captain A. B. Campbell, of McKeesport; J. F. Robinson, R. J. Buchanan, W. K. Jennings, W. S. Fraser, Edwin D. Bevier, and Robert Orr, of Pittsburg; Hugh Kennedy, of Sharpsburg, and William Boyd, of Philadelphia. Hagh Kennedy, of Sharpsburg, spoke on the conduct of young men's meetings. This evening John T. Woods, of McKeesport; N. W. Callender, of Pittsburg, and others addressed a large audience on the "Objects and Methods of Young Men's Christian Associations."

A men's meeting will be held in the Opera House to-morrow, which will be conducted by J. F. Robinson, of Pittsburg, Awoman's meeting will also be held at the Presbyterian Church, which will be addressed by Hugh Kennedy and C. E. Hulbert, the State Secretary.

Much mischief is done in the treatment of constipation. The common opinion is that all indications are fulfilled if medicine forces unloading of the bowels. A great error. Medicine simply purgative corrects no morbid condition, consequently their use is followed by greater costiveness. A remedy, to be effectual and permanent, must be composed of tonic, alterative, corrective and cathartic properties. These are admirably combined in Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills. 407 Market Street.

Mr. George C. Burgwin, attorney-at-law, Pittsburg, Pa., writes to Mr. Shoppell, the architect, as follows: "I write to say that I have been using your Modern House Designas for some time, and have built a number of houses according to your plans and specifications. I like your plans yery much, and the hunses and cottones built according to your plans.

houses and cottages built according to your de-signs have been much admired. I have found your estimates accurate and your plans re-liable."

EASTER MILLINERY OPENING French Pattern Bonnets,

Wednesday and Thursday, EASTER MILLINERY OPENING APRIL 2 AND 3,

THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY,

MARCH 27, 28, 29.

THE CLOUD WITH A SILVER LINING.

Lent is a soft, gray cloud, welcome to many as shutting out for awhile the too vivid glare of society life; and yet how gladly we turn from its sombre, subdued light to the bright sights and sounds of glad Easter, which appear as a silver lining upon the edge of the cloud. In accordance with this idea, our store, too, has taken on a freshness;

and the soft, bright hues so suggestive of approaching Spring.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT,

Including an entirely new stock of Ribbons, Flowers, Laces, and all the pretty things that go to make up the bewitching "Easter Bonnet," not to mention a large stock of Trimmed Hats and Bonnets, and the very latest novelties in shapes.
